Handling the claim, Deciding and Answering the Client

Claims received by the Bank are analyzed with principles of fairness, rigor and distance in the analysis, without making value judgements about the Bank's or the Customer's performance and within the framework of the Rules that regulate the Bank and Banking Activity in general. Whenever an immediate resolution is not possible, these are dealt with by a specifically dedicated unit, ensuring a response to the Complainant, in clear and simple language, and without undue delay, on their conclusion, decisions being based on legal, rational and objective criteria that protect Customers and the Bank interests.

The conclusion of the process, regardless of whether the decision is favorable or unfavorable to the Complainant, is always communicated to the Complainant, personally or by e-mail, letter or other communication channel (only for e-mail addresses, addresses and telephone numbers registered and associated, in the Bank's records, to the Customer/Complainant), indicating the reasons for the decision, when unfavorable.

When communicating its position, the Bank informs the Customer/Claimant of the possibility of forwarding his/her claim to alternative dispute resolution entities, referring to the information contained in this document.

Additional information on the Claims Management Policy may be requested through the Bank's contacts identified above.
